Best Men of Harvard and Yale Will Try Conclusions With Pick of Oxford and Cambridge at Berkeley Oval-Home Team the Favorite-Order of Events.

Harvard and Yale, rivals in athletic sports for a generation, will at Berkeley Oval to-day strive to prove the supremacy of America in track and field games against the pick of England's young manhood, representing the universities of Oxford and Cambridge. By far the most impertant contest of the kind ever scheduled for this country, the meeting is of unusual interest because the Americans have a defeat to wipe out, administered by the noted black and light blue athletes in a similar competition at the Queen's Club grounds, London, two years ago.

A more favorable year for the games could not have been selected. Harvard and Yale demonstrated their right to represent the athletic collegians of this country by finishing first and second in the Intercollegiate games last May, while the visitors have many brilliant performers among them and it is safe to say that the thirty-four men who will compete to-day for either America or England would hold their own with any team in the world. There are nine events on the programme, and with the exception of a two-mile run instead of a three-mile run, the programme is the same as that at which the Englishmen were victorious in 1899. Two men will represent each side in all the events . except the one-mile run, in which the number will be increased to three on a side Although in all probability the second and third places will be fought out to the end, only first places will count in deciding the match. This is the rule in the annual Oxford-Cambridge games and has also been the custom in all previous interna-

Spectators will have no difficulty in distinguishing the men for whom their sympathies are enlisted. The Englishmen will wear their university athletic costume, from shoulder to knee, while the Americons will wear the more abbreviated Jerbey peculiar to this country, which leaves the shoulders entirely bare. In addition, the visitors will have dark and light blue stripes on their white suits, denoting that their university is Oxford or Cambridge, while the red H of Harvard and the blue Y of Yale will be easily picked out by the thousands of partisans in the grand stands. Prior to the assassination which led to his elevation to the Presidency, Theodore Roosevelt had accepted the invitation of the committee to attend the games. This plan has been changed since, and Chauncey M. Depew, senior Senator for New York State, and Lieut.-Gov. Timothy Woodruff will be the guests of honor England will be represented among the spectators by Hon. Clive Bailey, acting Consul-General from Great Britain, and Vice-Consuls Martin and Perceval. A box has also been reserved for Lees Knowles, M. P., who is in charge of the Oxford-Cambridge team, and he will have several other members of Parliament as his guests. Among the well-known citizens who early secured boxes for the games are Col. John Jacob Astor, Commodore

Rouse, Seawanhaka Corinthian Y. C.; James A. Wright, Rupert C. King, Gerald L. Hoyt, Seelye Bendice, John L. Wilkie, Carl A. de Gersdorff, Thomas Crimmine, Charles M. Rotch, George H. Mairs and Joseph L. Stetson. Judging from the advance sale of tickets the crowd to cheer the Harvard and Yale men will be an immense one. Clive L. Du Val, Yale '03, who has charge of this part of the arrangements, said yesterdisposed of, and he was working hard at headquarters, filling orders, that came in so fast that the energetic young assist-ant manager of Yale was almost overwhelmed.

The teams finished their training on Monday, and, with the exception of L. J. Cornish of Oxford, who was injured on the day of his arrival at Berkeley Oval, all are in good condition. Cornish's knee, which was badly strained, had improved which was badly strained, had improved on much that last night it was said he would surely be able to compete in his specialty, the broad jump, even if he only made one of the four trials which each man is allowed. His place in the quarter will be taken by S. A. Neare, another Oxwill be taken by S. A. Neare, another Oxford man, who was only three yards behind Cornish at the Oxford-Cambridge games last March.

The good form shown by the Americans in the trials last Saturday has made Harvard and Yale a strong favorite, but it must be said for the Englishmen that they have not been tried out since they competed with the McCill University of March 1997.

must be said for the Englishmen that they have not been tried out since they competed with the McGill University at Montreal eleven days ago. Since then they may have developed unexpected strength in some of the events which are thought to be preductive of American victories. It must also be remembered that Boardman of Ysle, who is depended upon to win the quarter-mile for America, was a strong favorite for the race at that distance in England two years ago, but was beaten handily by C. G. Davison. A. E. Hind, the Cambridge sprinter, though he has not a taking style, may be faster than expected. He is certainly confident that he will be "in the hunt," for in reply to a question he said:

LITTLE BETTING ON THE RACE. Few Supporters of the Columbia Arc Willing to Bet Odds Against Shamrock II. Local sporting men complain of the dearth of speculative enthusiasm in regard to the coming international yacht races, and consequently the betting is not vigorous. The fact that the Columbia instead of the Constitution is to be the American contender has led some of the sceptics to believe that the Cup is in danger of being lifted," and what wagers have thus far been chronicled on the Columbia have been ascribed as having been made on patriotic lines. A visit to the prominent uptown hotels last night revealed the fact that very few genuine wagers had been made. Many of the big gamblers are inclined just now to remain under cover. The excuse is that they want to wait until the first race is finished before they will make up their minds how to invest their money in real earnest. George Considine is one of many who is of the opinion that the American boat is a false favorite. He thinks that the price should not be better than even money. Considine has already bet $1,200 to $2,000 on Shamrock II. He adds that if any one will take even money against the chances of the English craft he will hedge and back the Columbia for $2,000. Eddle Burke. Joe Vendig, Ike Thompson, Max Hirsch, Leo Mayer and other well-known bookmakers, according to Considine, entertain the same opinion. Many of the big gamblers are in to Considine, entertain the same opinion. Former Superintendent of Buildings John Dooner bet $500 even on the Columbia at the Hotel Metropole, and says that he is ready to take two more wagers of $1,000 at the same price. Charlie Mahoney of the Rossmore has received a commission of Frank Bangs of the Sturtevant Hotel has Frank Bangs of the Sturtevant Hotel has $3,000 to speculate on Shamrock II. The money belongs to a party of English sportsmen who are stopping at the hotel Bangs told The Sun reporter that he will invest whole or part of the money at 3 to 5. He does not think he will have much trouble in placing the money at these figures. Jim Wakely is a stanch admirer of Columbia and thinks that the American vessel will win. Wakely does not base his opinion from a patriotic point of view, but because he considers the Columbia the better yacht of the two. Wakely is ready to bet $2,000 at 5 to 4 on any race of the series and 5 to 3 on the ultimate result. His brother-in-law, Paddy Cligget, who has the money, is prepared to accommodate anybody who wishes to invest.

On the Wall Street curb market yesterday an offer was made to bet $500 to $400 that the Columbia wins.

NEWS OF THE WHEELMEN.

After making as meritorious and heroid a ride as ever was seen on a track Lester Wilson of Pittsburg last night at Madison Square Garden met with an accident at a time when almost certain victory seemed to be within easy reach for him. He was the hero of the evening, but one who was pitied when the races were over Wilson made his great struggle in the fifteen-mile race for professionals, which was the feat re of the card. It was one of the kind where of the card. It was one of the mines make fast going. Wilson did what no other rider unaided has succeeded in doing in one of these short distance races. He gained a lap tendance. Summary on his competitors, the same as it is done in six-day races. He accomplished this in the sixth mile and became the idol of the crowd. After that he just kept with the bunch, but was winning all the intermediate prizes and seemed pretty sure of the first prize of $100 When he was in the last mile, with less than half of it to go, he slipped on the turn and fell. He seemed to be apprehensive of being fouled and persisted in riding wide on the turns. It was a great sight to watch the tactics of the men trying to pocket Wilson Baltimone. Sept 24 Archie McEachern last night surprised the bicycle world by defeating "Major" Taylor two out of three races at the Colosseum. About 4,000 persons were present. All three races were motor paced and with flying starts. The times were: First race, one mile, 128, won by Taylor; second race, two miles, 30,3-5, won by McEachern, third race, five miles, 7,37, won by McEachern.

WORCESTER, Sept. 24.—There was a good attendance at the last cycle meeting of the season in the Coliseum last night. The big event was the ten-mile motor paced match between Joe Nelson, brother to Johnny Nelson, who was the favorite, and Peter G. Van Cott. The contest was full of excitement. Nelson won, covering the ten miles in 17 minutes 20 3-5 seconds, and only four laps ahead. The best mile was the eighth, which was done in 1.38 4-5. Nelson was the best man from the start. Although he suffered by his pacemaker's irregularity, it made no material difference.
